

Adalogical Ænigmas

No. 19

Gentle patron,

My father, the Romantic poet known to the world as Lord Byron, spent three years of his young manhood travelling widely abroad on what was then called The Grand Tour, visiting many exotic lands on what I am certain must have been an unending series of great adventures. I believe these peripatetic wanderings shaped his very soul, broadening his perspective on the world well beyond many of those around him.

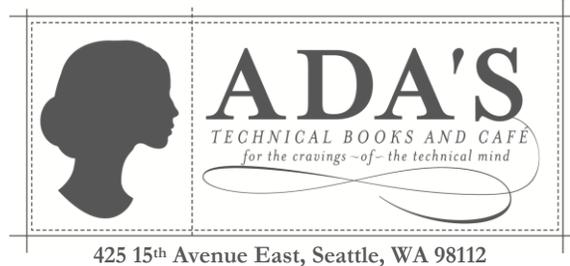

I myself have ventured forth only modestly, but I have been inspired by his perambulations to create the present ænigma.

Within the grid below, I ask you to draw a path connecting the centres of horizontally and vertically adjacent squares. Your path should form a single loop that neither touches nor crosses itself, but that passes through each and every circle found in the grid.

Please ensure that your path makes a right-angled turn at every black circle, and that it does not make any turn in the squares just before or after that circle. Contrariwise, at white circles, your loop may not turn, but it must turn in at least one of the squares either before or after that circle.

Once you've completed your loop, you can move on to finding the final answer to my ænigma. Locate in your grid all of the squares through which your path does not pass. Reading the letters in those squares in order, left-to-right and top-to-bottom, will reveal a clue to your final answer.

Good luck!
